AUTOHAVEN IS PART OF DREAM OF EX-CONVICT

Local Contractors Are Among Those Who Paid For Plans

According to a story in the Chicago Tribune this morning the Autohaven on which Dixon contractors had been asked to submit bids and the contract for the erection of which was to have been let today, was part of a promoter's $85,000,000 dream, ended yesterday by action of Assistant States Attorney Donald Thompson of Cook county, following a three-day investigation of the National Autohaven Company.

The concern's impressive suite of offices at 201 North Wells street was raided after a girl employee complained that her boss, who talked in millions, was slow about paying her wages, the Tribune said.

The promoter used the name of Adrian J. Williams, Prosecutor Thompson, who is assigned to the racket bureau, said Mr. Williams had prepared beautifully engraved stock for investors who might be attracted by his scheme to build 1,000 waystations for motorists throughout the country. The prosecutor also said that Williams was known as Samuel F. Wheeler, a Philadelphia lawyer, before he served a prison sentence for embezzlement.

Offices Are Closed
The prosecutor closed the Autohaven offices for the protection of the public, he said, but he did not keep Mr. Williams-Wheeler under arrest in the absence of any complaint who would press charges against him.

Williams sent plans for the construction of his Autohaven to contractors all over the middle west, said Mr. Thompson. "With the requirement that each contractor deposit $25 as security for the safe return of the plans, which cost $2.50 for the original and just a few cents for photostatic copies. More than 400 contractors sent him their $25, giving him over $10,000 in this way.

The scheme, as outlined and given wide publicity in magazines and newspapers in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana, called for the building of combination hotel, restaurant, gasoline and service stations throughout this area. Each of the havens, built on a standardized plan, was to cost $85,000. The literature declared the National Autohaven company was incorporated under the laws of Delaware with a capital of $2,500,000.

Business Men Deceived
The girl employee who directed the attention of the prosecutor to the concern is Miss Grace Colgan, who lives at the Illinois club. She told Mr. Thompson she hadn't received her salary and the raid followed.

Williams deceived several reputable business men into permitting him to use their names in the promotion, according to the prosecutor, but it appeared that the monetary losses incurred by these men was small.

Misjudged Curve:
Motorists Injured
Eugene Coffey and his aunt, Mrs. Eugene Bianco, who reside northwest of Sterling, were badly cut about the face, head and arms in an automobile accident, this evening about 6 o'clock at the sharp curve on the Lincoln Highway paving at Hess corners west of the city. Mrs. Bianco was driving the car, which was said to be going at a high rate of speed. Misjudging the sharp curve, the car left the paving crashing into a large transmission line pole, which was snapped off at the ground. The car continued about 15 feet into a field after striking the pole but remained upright and was only slightly damaged.

Coffey was thrown partly through the windshield and was badly cut about the head by the shattered glass. Mrs. Bianco who was formerly Miss Gene Smith was also cut about the face and arms and sustained painful bruises about the body. Both occupants were placed in another car and taken to the Dixon public hospital where their wounds were dressed.

Signals Needed At Park Road Crossing
A careless engineer on a north-bound Illinois Central freight train very nearly caused a fatal accident yesterday afternoon when he failed to sound his whistle for the Lowell Park road crossing. The railway to the southeast is concealed from view for south-bound traffic at this point and the railroad company should be required to erect warning signals at this crossing.

A Dixieite driving toward the city from Lowell Park yesterday was forced into the deep ditch just north of the crossing to avoid being run down. Several witnesses declared that there was no warning whistle from the train.

ENGINEERS FOR SURVEY WATER CO. SIGNED UP

Kansas City Firm Will Estimate Value Of Local Water Co.

At a special meeting of the city commission held in the office of Mayor George C. Dixon yesterday afternoon, a contract was signed with the Burns & McDonnell Engineering Company of Kansas City and Los Angeles to make a survey of the Dixon Water Company property with a view toward municipal ownership. R. E. McDonnell, member of firm, met with the city council and conferred with the officials upon the proposed purchase by the city of the water company.

The contract provides that work will be started within ten days and it is expected that a force of hydraulic engineers will be in Dixon by the latter part of the month to take up their investigations. It is expected that it will require about 30 days to complete the survey and an additional 30 days to complete the reports which will be filed with the city council. Mayor Dixon today stated that it was expected that the entire work would be completed before the first of September when the valuation of the property will be made public.

The Burns & McDonnell Company has been highly recommended for the Dixon investigation and has been engaged in 438 waterworks projects in states. The company's engineering staff is now working in Rockford on a large municipal ownership utility project. Another force is engaged at the present time in Springfield, where a huge waterworks project, the building of an artificial lake similar to the one at Decatur, is under way. Other Illinois projects in which the firm's engineers have been retained are at Bloomington, Duquoin, Keokuk, Monmouth and Wilmette. R. E. McDonnell, who met with the council is a graduate of the Leland Stanford university and was a member of the same engineering class with President Herbert Hoover.

Davenport Boosters Meet Independents

The Davenport Boosters baseball club will come to Dixon Sunday to engage the Dixon Independents at the latter's field. The Boosters are a club composed of players who were tried by the Davenport club of the Mississippi Valley League team in the spring, and were turned back to receive more experience. The Independents have won five out of six games and have been playing very good ball thus far this season. Burns and Clark will form the battery for the Independents.

POLO PHYSICIAN, BELOVED BY ALL, SUMMONED TODAY

Dr. Charles W. McPherson Victim Of Heart Attack This Morn

Telegraph Special Service
Polo, June 20—The people of this city and community were saddened today by the news of the death of Dr. Charles Walter McPherson, for many years a successful and kindly medical practitioner and civic leader, which occurred at 3:30 o'clock this morning at his home on West Mason street, the result of a heart attack.

Unless word is received from relatives at a distance making a change in arrangements imperative, funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at St. Mary's Catholic church, Rev. Fr. J. L. Blitsch officiating, and with burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

Native Of Ogle Co.
Dr. McPherson, known to everyone in the vicinity as an outstanding citizen, was born in Eagle Point township, Ogle county, Sept. 19, 1861 and his entire life, with the exception of his years at college, was spent in this community. He graduated from Rush Medical College in 1882 and completed his studies at the University of New York, from which he received his degree in 1887, after which he returned to Polo to take up the practice which he continued successfully the rest of his life.

On Sept. 15, 1886 he was married in death July 19, 1908. He was married Oct. 19, 1910 to Miss Maud Allen, who survives him, together with two sons, Fayette and Donald; four sisters, Mrs. Sadie Maxwell and Miss Mary McPherson, who live in Alaska, Mrs. Laura O'Kane of Milledgeville; and two brothers, Harry of Los Angeles and Dr. Pearson McPherson of Chicago.

Members of the crew of the gasoline car which operates between Nelson and Peoria, were present at the funeral this morning at 9:30 and testified. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to a fracture of the skull sustained when he was accidentally struck by the railroad right of way Friday morning about 8:20.

PASTOR'S STORY OF AN ATTEMPTED LYNCHING A HOAX

Dallas Minister Makes A Confession To His Congregation

Dallas, Tex., June 20.—(UP)—Speaking from the same pulpit over which he was found hanging from a chandelier last Thursday, the Rev. B. P. Brown, 30-year-old Baptist Minister, confessed last night to his congregation that his story about four men trying to lynch him was a hoax.

"I intended to kill myself and then just couldn't do it when I was hanging there and looking death right in the face," declared the young minister who was hit on the head by burglars last year and whose story of the "lynching" attracted nationwide attention.

To his congregation, assembled for a revival, Brown told in detail of how he entered the church at night, climbed upon a chair, hanged himself to the chandelier above the pulpit, kicked the chair, and then changed his mind.

Realizing, he said, that he slowly was strangling to death, he fought desperately until, as the new rope stretched, he was able to rest his toes upon the chair and keep life in his body until he was found hours later.

Confession A Surprise
Brown came here from Midland, Tex., early this year, a short time after burglars beat him insensible when he surprised them robbing the hotel where he worked. Here he worked as a baggage clerk at the Adolphus hotel and acted as "supply preacher" for the Baptist church.

When police found him Thursday hanging above the pulpit, he told a sensational story of being kidnapped, taken to the church, stripped and strung up by four men, who he said then sat in a front pew and laughed at him as he dangled from the chandelier. He said his life was saved only by the fact that the rope was new and stretched.

His confession last night was a surprise to the congregation and a relief to the police who had admitted they were puzzled by the "crime." Many theories had been advanced including one that the Ku Klux Klan, once strong here, had attempted to punish Brown for "Communist leanings."

Queen Of Outboard Speeders Injured

Skaneateles, N. Y., June 20.—(AP)—Instead of matching speed with speed in the motorboat regatta today, Loretta Turnbull, young California girl, lay in a Auburn, N. Y., hospital with a dislocated left hip suffered in yesterday's races.

She was a victim of her own speed. The accident happened as she was setting a wild pace for the first time during the day. She had failed to win an event, and in the class C race she hit the turn at the end of the course ahead of the pack, failed to take it and her "Sun Kist Maid" hurtled upward and forward. Miss Turnbull struck the boat as she came down and landed in the water, unconscious.

Rescuers carried her to a hotel where she regained consciousness. Later she was removed to the hospital at Auburn.

GAS CAR VICTIM WAS IDENTIFIED AS JNO. BONNELL

Relatives Aged Man Killed At VanPetten Claim His Body

Relatives from Arlington and LaMoille went to the Vaughan mortuary in Amboy last evening and identified the remains of the aged man who was struck by the Northwestern gasoline car in the yard at VanPetten yesterday morning as John Bonnell, aged 74, a laborer, who had been staying with relatives in Rock Falls recently. Two brothers positively identified and claimed the remains which were to be taken to LaMoille this afternoon, burial to take place tomorrow.

Bonnell, who had been staying with relatives in the vicinity of Rock Falls, was very hard of hearing and his sight was very bad, relatives told. He was a successful and kindly medical practitioner and civic leader, which occurred at 3:30 o'clock this morning at his home on West Mason street, the result of a heart attack.

Members of the crew of the gasoline car which operates between Nelson and Peoria, were present at the funeral this morning at 9:30 and testified. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to a fracture of the skull sustained when he was accidentally struck by the railroad right of way Friday morning about 8:20.

AID TO GERMANY SUBJECT OF TALK AT WHITE HOUSE

Steps To Combat World Business Slump Contemplated By U. S.

BULLETIN
Washington, June 20.—(AP)—Early announcement of a proposal to suspend all war debts and reparations payments for a year was expected from the White House as Democratic and Republican members of Congress assured President Hoover today of their support.

By The Associated Press.

European capitals responded eagerly today to President Hoover's statement that the United States was interested in strengthening the economic situation in Europe.

The President's specific mention of the situation in Germany was followed by a strengthening of stocks in Berlin where some of the leading issues gained as much as 15 points. Financial pages hailed the movement as a "Hoover boom."

The German Cabinet was understood to have given precedence to the President's statement at its meeting today.

While official comment was lacking, the dispatches from Washington also caused a sensation in London and the keenest kind of interest in Paris.

In London great strides toward at least temporary alleviation of Europe's economic distress were expected while the visit of Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, assumed an even greater significance despite public stress on its private character.

Outstanding importance was attached to the President's statement in Paris where it was said France also desires to help German reconstruction. At the same time the French position that there is a definite link between reparations and war debts was reiterated.

Intense interest was shown everywhere in whatever concrete plans may be presented to alleviate economic distress both in Germany and the rest of Europe.

President Hoover contemplates issuing next week a comprehensive statement concerning conferences with Republican and Democratic leaders over the German reparations problem.

In the meantime, it was said at the White House the President will continue his conferences throughout today and into next week.

Before his usual working hour today the Chief Executive had at his office Assistant Secretary of State Castle, and Under Secretary Mills of the Treasury.

Soon after he conferred with Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, who refused to comment upon leaving the executive offices.

Ashurst was followed by Representative Treadway, Republican, of Massachusetts.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the House Republican leader, who took part in the beginning of the discussion yesterday, spent last night at the White House.

The President, in view of the developments concerning the German reparations for the day. As a general rule there are from six to a dozen regular callers.

Washington, June 20.—(AP)—President Hoover's plan to help Germany was awaited today as a possible next step in combating the world business slump.

It was indicated that Mr. Hoover would hold further conferences with political leaders before bringing to maturity the proposals which he said would be designed to speed economic improvement in the United States and abroad, especially in Germany.

After several discussions yesterday the President issued this statement: "Since my return from the central west yesterday I have conferred with those leaders of both political parties who are present in Washington with respect to certain steps which we might take to assist in economic recovery both here and abroad."

"These conversations have been particularly directed to strengthening the situation in Germany. No definite plans or conclusions have yet been arrived at, but the response which I have met from the leaders of both parties is most gratifying. Any statement of plan or method is wholly speculative and is not warranted by the facts."

Despite that warning there was, of course, speculation. Among steps which some insisted might be taken to help Germany were a moratorium of war debts and reparations and a loan to help Germany through her financial straits.

Germany's recent cry that the burden of reparations payments was intolerable already had revived discussions of the fact that under the Young plan she might suspend the major portion of reparations payments for two years.

Provisions for a similar suspension.

'GOOD TIME' HOP OF ATLANTIC TO START MONDAY?

Flying Photographer's Plane Ready For Ocean Jump

St. John, New Brunswick, June 20.—(AP)—A flying photographer and his pilot completed preparations today for a "good time" trans-Atlantic flight.

Otto Hillig, who made money by making portraits of social leaders, and Holger (hold your horses) Holtriss, who was a Danish immigrant several years ago, are going home.

Denmark is the first stop scheduled on their proposed flight from Harbor Grace, and then a trip to Germany, where Hillig was born.

They hope to take off early Monday from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on the 3100-mile hop. They are going just for the fun of it.

They flew to St. John from Harbor Grace, N. J. last night, completing the trip in four hours and 20 minutes. Flying conditions were good. Holtriss who received the nickname "Hold Your Horses" while he was a barnstorming pilot, was at the controls.

Hillig, who is capable of handling the stick to relieve Holtriss at brief intervals but is not an experienced pilot, is a native of Steinbrücken, Germany, and is 55 years old. He came to America 40 years ago, and never has been back. Holtriss is 27 years old.

The plane is named "Liberty."

Hillig paid $22,000 for the Liberty, which has a cruising speed of 110 miles an hour. It carries 600 gallons of fuel, permitting 32 hours in the air. They estimate the trip to Denmark can be made in 28 hours.

The proposed course crosses the Atlantic, cut across Ireland and England to the Netherlands and then along the coast to Copenhagen.

Made Glider Flight Of English Channel

Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, June 20.—(AP)—Lieut. Assant, a Canadian flier, inventor and opera singer, today held the distinction of being the first person to cross the English Channel in a glider.

Starting at Lympe airfield, England, yesterday, he rose to a height of 12,000 feet behind an airplane and cast off. He headed northward, gradually edging toward the sea and sailed toward the French coast at a rate of 60 miles an hour.

He landed at Singlevort airfield near Calais.

The machine behaved magnificently, he said, rising and falling in a vast curve of air depressions. "There was nothing in the flight," he said, "except for the intense cold I have never been so cold in my life not even in Canada."

Lieut. Bardmore stole a march on six other men, including Robert Kronfeld, Austrian glider expert, who intended to compete today for a $5,000 prize offered by a London newspaper for a flight across the Channel and back. He said he was not seeking the award but wanted the first cross-Channel glider to be a British subject.

Three Officials Of Closed Bank To Jail

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Three of the four officials of the closed Bank of United States, on trial for 12 weeks on charges of misapplying funds, were convicted today by a county jury. The jury disagreed on Henry W. Pollock, head of the bank's legal department.

Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank; Saul Singer, vice president, and his son, Herbert Singer, a clerk, were convicted. The jury returned its verdict at 2:15 A. M., after deliberating for more than 14 hours.

The four were specifically charged with misapplying the funds of the Municipal Safe Deposit Co., a subsidiary of the bank, by using $8,000,000 of its money in another transaction.

Marcus, who a year ago had been hailed as a financial wizard, due to the rapid growth of the bank—it had 59 branches—was removed to Tombs prison with the Singers after the verdicts were announced.

sion were made in the war debt settlements negotiated with the United States.
Financial observers have felt that Germany would claim the moratorium only as a last resort because of the possible effect upon her credit.
That Germany wants a change in the situation has been indicated by developments following her appeal for revision of the Young plan which calls for payments this year of more than $425,000,000.
German government leaders have conferred with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson in England, and the English statesmen are going to Berlin soon for further discussions.
Interest in war debts and reparations have been heightened, too, by the visit of Secretary Mellon to England and the announcement that Secretary Stimson also was going abroad.

MURDERER OF DEPUTY SHOT BY COMPANION

Lake Geneva Officials At Loss To Determine Motive For Murder

Lake Geneva, Wis., June 20—(UP)—A Deputy Sheriff was shot through the heart and killed and his assailant, a neighbor, was fatally wounded in a gun battle which developed at what authorities said was a drinking party in a private garage.
The shootings occurred in a garage owned by Walter Morgan, who was named as the slayer of Deputy Al C. Exner and who himself was shot over the heart and died later in a hospital.
Morgan was shot, witnesses said, by Deputy Sheriff Herbert Griebner who went with Exner to investigate the party.
Authorities were told that there previously had been trouble between Exner and Morgan.
Exner, who gained some fame last year when he captured the kidnaper of Betty Ann Foster of Valparaiso, Ind., was awakened early today by shots. He dressed and started toward Morgan's garage, nearby, on the way, he met Deputy Griebner, who accompanied him.
Griebner said when he and Morgan entered the garage, five men were there, one standing at each corner and Morgan himself at the far side. Exner, he said, asked who had been doing the shooting.
At this, Griebner said, Morgan started across the garage, his hands in his pockets. Half way, Griebner said, Morgan stopped suddenly, drew a revolver and shot Exner through the heart. Griebner immediately shot down Morgan and arrested the other men, who did not resist.
The four are Charles Sabar, Bill Morgan, William Morgan and R. Morgan, all of Lake Geneva. The last two, relatives of Walker Morgan, said they knew of no motive for the killing.
Exner was 35 years old, married and the father of two children.

HULL ANNOUNCES PURPOSE OF HIS SURVEY OF RIVER

Two Day Trip To Come to Finish With Dinner In Dixon

Congressman Wm. E. Hull of Peoria ranking member of the Rivers and Harbors Committee will make a survey with Major Glenn E. Edgerton on Monday and Tuesday, June 22nd and 23rd.
A number of congressmen, photographers, Major Edgerton and his staff, will make a thorough investigation of the Hennepin Canal, beginning at Rock Island and ending at Bureau Junction. They will pass all of the locks and will investigate each of them and study as to the advisability of removing them and building new locks.
After going through the canal, they will then proceed to go through the feeder, beginning at Sheffield and ending at Rockford.
The program will be as follows: June 22nd—Rock Island, starting 7 A. M. Lunch at Wyand Lock at 12:30 P. M. Arrive at Bureau Junction at 5 P. M., ending first day's trip.
Will return to Geneseo for a night meeting and there remain all night. June 23rd—Start from the canal through the feeder, arriving at Sterling for lunch, 12 M. After lunch, drive to Rockford and hold meeting at 3 P. M. with Rockford business men, returning that afternoon to Dixon, arriving at 6 o'clock P. M. for dinner and night meeting.
Congressman Hull said today that he was interested more in having the business men meet in groups with Major Edgerton and give him all the information they could not only in reference to the advantages of this waterway being completed but also as to what they could furnish in the way of freight.
"In making those investigations, waterway development largely depends upon the commercial ability of the locally through which the water runs," he said.
"From the view that I take of it, the Hennepin Canal would have great advantage for the inland waterway system because it would reduce the water haulage from Chicago to the Northwest by 335 miles because it runs through a part of the State of Illinois where the principal manufacturers of the state are located; such cities as, Freeport, Rockford, Dixon, Sterling, Rock Falls, Geneseo, Rock Island, Moline and Davenport. I therefore believe that it is highly important that the Hennepin Canal and the feeder should be improved to the extent that the same barge lines that go through the Illinois and Mississippi Rivers could pass through the Hennepin Canal."

Chicago—Recommendations that Jesse Hilbert, 26, and his brother William, 20, be held for the grand jury were returned in a Coroner's jury verdict after investigation of the death of Shirley Weiner, 13, of Kankakee.
Decatur—A large quantity of illicit liquor was seized and 37 persons were arrested in raids on 35 alleged speakeasies. Federal agents from Springfield, Danville, Chicago and Indianapolis made the raids.

Reynolds-Dillon Wedding Brilliant Social Event Today

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Luke's Episcopal church, where the bride has worshipped since a child, one of the most brilliant weddings of the year was solemnized, when Miss Helene Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Deillon Reynolds, of this city, and one of Dixon's fairest daughters, and Washington Martin Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dillon of Sterling, were married by the Reverend Father J. Norman Burke, rector of St. Luke's, uniting two prominent and old families of this community.

St. Luke's church had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with a solid bank of green, palms and ferns, with large bunches of calla lilies. The dignified edifice formed a charming background for the impressive Episcopal service, performed in the presence of some three hundred guests.

Clinton Fahrney presided at the organ and played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, as the wedding processionals.

The guests were seated by the ushers who were George Robinson, Henry Hess, Kenneth Wolfe, Jack Hill, Ted Bowman of Sterling; and John Reynolds, brother of the bride.

Just after Mrs. Reynolds, the bride's mother, had been ushered to her place; a bevy of girlhood friends of the bride, preceded the bridal party in a group, and were seated in pews reserved for them. The group included Misses Clara Gwen Bardwell, Maxine Rosenthal, Dorothy Jane McCoy, Jarleth Jones, Lucy Bovey, Martha Jean Stephenson, Alice Powell, Mildred Conley, Stella Mae Weigle, Ella Gwen Shaw; Mrs. Thomas Erwin, Mrs. Wayne Wolfe, Mrs. Richard Shanks, and Miss Marion Speis of Menominee, Michigan.

As the impressive strains of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus rang out, the bridal party approached the altar where the vows were exchanged. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Elmer D. Reynolds, was an exquisite picture in her bridal gown, fashioned of white net, with ruffled net train, a Henri Bendell model, very quaint and becoming to the youthful blond bride.

The Duchess lace cap, with tiny bouquets of orange blossoms at either side, from which the tulle veil fell in graceful folds, is an heirloom and belonged to Mrs. Horace G. Reynolds, aunt of the bride, and was worn by Mrs. Douglas Harvey, and Mrs. John G. Ralston, cousins of the bride, at their weddings. The bride's flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls.

The flower girls, who were charming in frocks of pink and blue organdie, made in fascinating style, and who wore French chiffon bonnets, and scattered blossoms in the pathway of the bride, were Joan and Lucile Halston, cousins of the bride. Another young cousin of the bride, Douglas Gray Harvey, Jr., was the ring bearer, carrying the ring on a net pillow in a white rose. Master Douglas in a suit of white, performed his duty with grace.

Miss Jane Dillon of Sterling was the maid of honor and was beautifully gowned in mousseline de sole in green, with touches of pale yellow in the velvet trimming. She wore a large green hat in the green mousseline de sole, with a yellow velvet band and carried a huge armful of Marguerites.

The bridesmaids were Misses Jane Harvey and Bernice Leland in peach net; Misses Carolyn Carlson of DeKalb and Margaret Soule of Peoria in yellow net; Misses Avis Resek of Dixon and Katherine Keible of Sycamore, in blue net. The bridesmaids' gowns were all made alike, quaintly fashioned with which they wore large picture hats matching their gowns, and carried huge arm bouquets of Marguerites.

Supporting Mr. Dillon as the best man was William Feldman of Sterling. As the bridal party left the church Mr. Fahrney played as the wedding recessional, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at Reynolds-woode, where lovely flowers from the Reynolds gardens were used for the decorations. The reception was attended by more than two hundred guests. Wedding refreshments were served on the lawn under the beautiful old oaks, the young newlyweds receiving the best wishes and congratulations of their friends before leaving on their wedding journey to the east.

Peach colored satin covered the table at which the bridal party were seated, and the satin was ruffled to the floor, trimmed with silver bands. The tall silver vase, the centerpiece was filled with Aaron Ward roses, delphinium, and baby's breath. There were rare old silver candlesticks.

The bride wore as a traveling costume, a blue and white ensemble. On their return they will be at home at Knightstown, Indiana. The bride, a charming young woman, one of the most popular in the younger society circles, attended the University of Chicago and Rockford College. The bridegroom who is a splendid young man, the son of Paul Dillon of Sterling, owner of the Northwestern Barb Wire Co., attended Culver Military Academy and Babson's Institute in Boston. Both young people have the best wishes of hosts of friends for future happiness.

Pretty Wedding At Church of God This Morning at 9

A pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at nine o'clock at the Church of God, when Miss Elizabeth C. Frey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Frey and Alvah C. Drew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Drew, were married. The Rev. L. E. Conner officiated at the simple but impressive ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few friends, the church being beautifully decorated with green, roses and peonies.

The attendants were Miss Jean Frey, sister of the bride and Merle Drew, brother of the bridegroom. The bride was preceded to the altar by the maid of honor, the bride walking to the altar alone.

Miss Catherine Preston presided at the organ and played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the wedding march. Before the ceremony, Miss Frances Roesler, cousin of the groom, sang very beautifully, "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Ford.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white organdie, over a satin slip. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. A shower bouquet of white roses and ferns were her flowers. Miss Jean Frey, the maid of honor wore a dainty frock of yellow organdie over a satin slip. Her flowers were pink roses and ferns.

After the ceremony at the church a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to the immediate relatives and bridal party. The decorations were in pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Drew will be at home after June 24th at the home of the bridegroom's parents. His bride, who attended the Illinois Woman's College, after graduating from the Dixon High school is a winsome and charming young woman and has been employed for the past year or so at the Kline Dept. store. Both young people have hosts of friends who wish them every happiness.

After the reception the happy couple left on a wedding trip. The bride's going away costume consisted of a yellow and white shantung suit with slippers and accessories to match.

Miss Zimmerman Bride A. Burnett

A pretty wedding ceremony was performed on Thursday afternoon, June 11, at 1 o'clock, at the Brooklyn Township Lutheran church when Rev. J. L. Grosshans performed the ceremony which united the lives of Miss Hazel M. Zimmerman of Compton and Alfred B. Burnett, Jr., of Paw Paw in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of a number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom. During the ceremony, Mrs. C. L. Ogilvie, very sweetly sang, "O Blessed House." The church was attractively decorated with garden flowers.

As the bridal party entered the church, the strains of Lohengrin's march sounded forth. It was played by Mrs. Harold Wenzel of LaSalle, a close friend of the bride.

The young couple was attended by Miss Irene Zimmerman, sister of the bride, who served as bridesmaid and William Hoschelt of Arlington, a close friend of the couple, was best man.

Mrs. Burnett was charming in a beautiful dress of French blue chiffon with accessories to match and carried a shower bouquet of tea roses and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore a dress of mountain haze orchid chiffon with accessories to match and also carried tea roses and orange blossoms.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Zimmerman of Compton, and is an attractive young lady. She attended the rural school near Compton and since then has been at home with her parents. She has a host of friends in Compton and this locality who wish her much happiness in married life.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Burnett, S. of Paw Paw and has lived in that community all his life. He is a prosperous young farmer and is working his father's farm southeast of Paw Paw.

Immediately following the ceremony, the newly weds left on a short wedding trip to Rockford and Chicago. They will make their home on the farm southeast of Paw Paw.

On Sunday, June 14th, a reception was held for the newlyweds at the home of the bride's parents. A number of the immediate relatives of the couple were guests at a six o'clock dinner. In the evening a shower was held for them and about 25 guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Burnett received a number of beautiful and useful gifts which they may use in their new home.

SCHOOL-ROOM MOVIES.

Ever since Shakespeare made his famous remark about the unwilling school boy reluctantly trudging off to his lessons, it has been taken for granted that children, in the very nature of things, are bound to dislike going to school. Improvements in methods of teaching within the last few decades have probably lessened this old antagonism of childhood toward its education. But the children have not yet been entirely converted. Most of them, even now, would rejoice to see the school house, burn down just as their fathers before them would have rejoiced.

Once in a while, though, one gets a glimpse of future possibilities—a glimpse that brings conviction that schools eventually will be different. A long start has been made already. A great deal more undoubtedly will be accomplished during the next generation.

All of this meditation is provoked by a little catalog recently issued by the Eastman Company—a catalog showing a long list of educational films devised for use in schools. The thing opens amazing vistas to the mind of one who got his "three R's" in the good old way.

Consider the possibilities of the school-room movie. What could not be done with it? Could any book or blackboard-talk hope to compete with a well-devised film?

Look back at your own school days. You studied, among other things, geography—for long months, poring over uninteresting books and emerging with only the haziest idea, after all, of the world you live in.

Can you imagine getting geography through movies? Wouldn't a couple of dozen selected films inform a child about this world in a way that books could never equal? Furthermore, the child would remember what he learned—and he would look forward to the next lesson.

Not all lessons could be taught that way, of course. Such bugbears of childhood as arithmetic, spelling and grammar can never be sugar-coated very much. But plenty of things could be taught through the films. A child could be informed about his world and the people who live in it, and the job could be done quickly and thoroughly.

The very smallness of the film catalog mentioned above is impressive—because it shows that the surface has hardly been scratched. The movie can be one of the greatest allies the school teacher ever had. When it finally gets used to its fullest potentialities, it is a safe bet that the school children won't be half as eager to have vacation time come around.

MORE UNWISE CENSORSHIP.

One of the most unpleasant bits of news to come to Washington in months is the recent disclosure that the Treasury Department has started censoring the radio broadcast and press releases of the Public Health Service.

Recently a Public Health Service broadcaster suggested that it is wise to eat less meat than usual in the hot days of summer. Instantly a flood of protests poured in from meat packers and live stock associations.

Oddly enough, the government listened to these protests. Now the Public Health Service officials have been notified that all radio broadcasts and press releases hereafter must get the O. K. of the treasury secretary's office before they go to the public.

However, this is disguised, it is censorship—and censorship of a peculiarly stupid and dangerous kind. If government health experts cannot speak their minds freely because their official superiors are afraid of offending private business men, the health service might as well go out of business.

ANTI-POWER BACKING.

When W. C. Mullendore, vice president of the Southern California Edison Company, told the convention of the National Electric Light Association the other day that Senator Norris of Nebraska and Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania are leaders of a "self-appointed anti-power group" he erred in one rather important particular.

These two men are, to be sure, leaders in an anti-power group; but they were not exactly self-appointed. The voters of Nebraska and Pennsylvania, respectively, appointed them—by thumping good majorities, too. The majority of the voters of these two states seem to look on the power question precisely as Messrs. Norris and Pinchot look on it. If that constitutes a "self-appointed" group it is an uncommonly large one.

Some men, especially politicians, have such a command of language that you are tempted to say that the language has command of them.—George Bernard Shaw.

It is monstrous to suppose that labor is the highest goal of man, and leisure little better than an affliction.—Heywood Brown.

There is not much difference between Japan and America after all.—Prince Takamatsu.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

It seemed that every wee Jap had soon indicated he was glad to have the Tynies join right in the baseball game. "Well, say!" cried Clowny. "I may be the worst, but will you boys let me bat first? I always like to run around the bases when I play." The Travel Man snapped, "Won't you learn that you must always take your turn and play each angle of the game? Don't try to pick the best. The Japs may be real kind to you and let you bat, but that won't do. Just get out in the field and do the same as all the rest." So, far an hour or so they played. The little Jap lads off hurriedly the way the Tynies scampered round as speedy as could be. When Clowny got his turn to bat, he swung real hard and then fell flat. "That pitcher is real clever. I can't see the ball," he said. Of course the whole bunch tired out soon. The Travel Man then said, "It's noon and you should all be hungry. Come, let's go some place and eat. The little Japs can join us, too, and run back to their game when through." They shortly found an eating place and each one took a seat. The friendly Japs, when lunch was over thanked every one and off they tore. The Tynies bid them all goodbye and Scouty said, "They're great! But, come, let's walk around a while. I'm good for 'bout a real short mile. There surely must be other things to see. Why hesitate?" Not far away they found some boys who laughed and made a lot of noise. They marched in soldier fashion and were cut as they could be. Soon Clowny cried, "Well, look at that! Each one has on a paper hat. They'll some day be real soldiers. It's a really nice sight to see." The Tynmites see a huge parade wagon in the next story.)

REVIEW OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF ILLINOIS WHICH ADJOURNED ITS SESSION

Veto Of Repealer Of State's Dry Laws And Congressional Reapportionment Outstanding

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—Remarkable more for its failures than for its successes, the 57th Illinois General Assembly concluded its work here today and recessed until June 30, the time specified by law for its sine die adjournment. It will meet then to act on the possible vetoes by the Governor of bills still on his desk.

A veto that added another page to Illinois history killed one of the chief bills the legislature adopted. It was House Bill No. 1, the prohibition repealer bill, done to death by the Governor on the ground it was "nullificationism"—a blow at the state's obligation to support the federal constitution.

The assembly acted as many that have gone before, waited until the last two weeks to do the bulk of its work, and then with the feverishness of a rogue regretting a mis-spent life, did things abruptly, both passing laws and killing them. It killed the women's eight hour bill, the women on juries bill, the call for a constitutional convention, the state income tax bill, the county tax rate increase and others that were given a quietus that will lay them low only till the next assembly.

Finances of the state and of Cook county induced various attempts at emergency legislation, and for the first time in state history resulted in adoption of a state tax anticipation warrant bill. The session ended without extending any satisfactory relief for Cook county, and legislators departed under the evident necessity of a quick return here in special session to enact such relief. Failure was due to Cook county's inability to agree on the type of relief needed.

Income Tax Drive Fails
Organized agriculturists' intensive five months' drive to pass an income tax bill, which it said would add property owners throughout the state, came to naught in the House of Representatives, June 3 by a close vote that shook every rural district in the state.

On that fateful day one of the most important pieces of legislation before the General Assembly failed by two votes to secure the constitutional majority required for passage, although it had one more vote than the total cast against it. The count stood 75 to 74 with Cook county delegates lined up solidly against it. In the balance were twenty downstate representatives from the large industrial centers who voted with the Chicago delegation.

The bill, introduced by Senator Simon E. Lantz, republican, Congerville, sought to impose a tax upon all net incomes in order to reduce the state property tax for the general revenue fund. Backers of the bill asserted it would deduct nearly $300,000,000 from the tax burden on real estate and tangible property. It would have levied a tax on all incomes on a graduated scale ranging from one per cent on incomes of less than $2,000 to 6 per cent on incomes exceeding $25,000.

Two months after it was introduced, the Senate passed it without a change. Then the struggle came in the House. A hostile revenue committee voted it down, but when its report was brought to the House, there was a substantial majority of votes cast against the report of the committee, and the bill went to the calendar.

Then began the campaign for voters. Organized agriculturists, which met at the annual January session of the Illinois Agricultural Association in Springfield and approved the drive for an income tax, set about to make the measure "more attractive."

Its proponents introduced the now famous "offset" feature by which a reduction of taxes paid on property against the computed tax on income would be allowed. Besides this, an amendment which was severely criticized would have paved the legislature in a position of asking that if the "offset" feature was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court the rest of the act might remain valid. This clause, known as the "savings" clause, lost more votes than any other provision of the bill, many opponents said.

There was a general fear on the part of representatives from the large industrial centers that the proponents knew full well the "offset" feature was unconstitutional and that they were merely hoping that by a ruse they could pass the bill.

Many attempts to change the exemptions of the bill to raise or lower the rates and make a host of minor changes were defeated by the machine-like organization of the sponsors as it was pushed through second reading and the amendment stage to final passage. At all times it seemed as though the bill had ample votes to pass.

When the final test came, however, its killing was done with dispatch. Few voters explained themselves, and at the last, Homer T. Tice, of Greenville, appropriation committee chairman, and the man who piloted the bill through the house, attempted to have a reconsideration of the vote, but his motion was killed.

In the closing days of the session, Senator Lantz introduced another income tax bill which he said was "better than the first." Because of lack of time, it failed to gain consideration that would give it an opportunity to pass.

Women On Juries Bills Defeated
Women of Illinois will NOT be qualified to serve on juries of the state for another biennium at least. This was the decision of the house of representatives which voted 76 to 46 against a bill giving them the right. Although this vote lacked one of being the required constitutional majority, the decision is final until another lobby of women comes to Springfield at another session.

When the General Assembly was in the midst of its work, the Supreme Court of the state held that the law, passed by the assembly two years ago and placed on the statute books by referendum in November was unconstitutional because the referendum was regarded as a delegation of legislative power to the people.

Representative James J. McVicker, Chicago, introduced the two bills requiring women on jury lists.

They were reported on favorably by the judicial committee, but languished on the calendar until just a week before the close of the session. When they were finally called a group of prominent house members using time-worn arguments urged that the courts of the state be not again thrown into chaos by passage of another unconstitutional law and they won.

Gas Tax Changes
Demands of cities for a one-third share of the three-cent gas tax were refused by administration forces in the assembly on the ground that further division of the tax would retard the state road building program. The present division is one-third to the counties and two thirds to the state.

To appease the cities, however, the administration through Representative David Hunter, Jr., of Rockford, chairman of the house roads and bridges committee, introduced two bills permitting the state highway division to build and maintain city streets forming part of state routes and to build belt line roads around cities.

For this work the state included $7,000,000 in the biennial road construction program. Administrative leaders indicated, however, that as soon as bond issue routes are completed, the cities will be given a larger share of the gas tax.

In agreeing to take over the maintenance of city streets, the state insisted that it be given full control of traffic and parking on such streets as form part of state routes. Urban members attempted to delete this clause of the bill but were unsuccessful.

HARD ROADS
Determined to complete the one hundred million and sixty million dollar bond issue road systems within the next three years, the state successfully resisted all efforts to divert road funds for the building of roads not included in this program. Completion of the bond issue systems will take not only all of the remaining money in the bond issue funds but also much of the gas tax to be collected from 1931 to 1933.

More than four hundred bills, proposing appropriation of a total in excess of a hundred million dollars for the construction of hard roads in every senatorial district, were introduced during the session. Even after administration leaders announced that all such bills would be disregarded, they continued to roll in.

Realizing the necessity of many of the roads not included in bond issue systems, the legislature passed a bill creating a commission to make a survey of traffic needs of the state and to plan a secondary road system to be built with gas tax money when the primary systems are completed. This commission is to consist of five members of the house, five senators, five citizens, the director of public works and buildings and the chief highway engineer. All road bills introduced this session were referred to this commission.

To care for growing traffic volume on the bond issue roads, the legislature passed a bill specifying that all new state roads must be at least 18 feet wide. Some of the roads under the $60,000,000 bond issue were only nine feet wide.

The assembly appropriated $50,000,000 from the road fund and $57,000,000 from the motor fuel tax fund to the department of public works and buildings to work out the administration program for the next two years.

Chicago and Cook County Finances
Although a special session was called in 1930 to devise a financial relief program for Cook county and Chicago, the metropolitan area, according to its representatives, was still facing a financial crisis when the regular session convened.

Until the city election in April, the legislature gave little attention to Chicago's pleas. After that time, however, a number of measures were shoved to the floor by Chicago members but all were sidetracked because no general program could be agreed upon.

One of the most important measures which was killed in committee was Representative Elmer Schnackenberg's proposal to eliminate a large number of taxing assessing officials by consolidating the board of assessors and the board of revenue.

Another Chicago relief bill rejected by the legislature was the Ward Licensing bill introduced in the senate at the request of Mayor Anton J. Cermak. This bill would have added $7,000,000 a year to the receipts of the city. It was voted down as revolutionary after several senators described it as an occupational tax.

The legislature also turned their thumbs down on Senator Harold Kessinger's resolution for the calling of a constitutional convention. Kessinger said that the revision of the constitution was the only thing

Where Two Died in Plane Crash

Soon after residents near Carpentersville N. J., noticed an airplane circling in apparent search of an emergency landing field, the craft crashed to earth, and in the tangled mass of wreckage above, the pilot and a passenger met instant death. Germain La Brecque, 21, a licensed pilot of Allentown, Pa., was at the controls of the plane. The other victim was Aubrey Upgrave, 23. Motor failure was believed to be the cause of the crash.

which in the long run could help Chicago and Cook county.

Kessinger also said that the Schnackenberg bill for elimination of the assessors and board of review would provide immediate salvation for Chicago's treasury. He asserted that the democrats were insistent on saving the assessors and the republicans would not consent to chopping off jobs on the board of review in placing the blame for defeat of the bill.

Governor Emmerson, through his spokesman in the senate has indicated that he will not call a special session for Chicago and Cook county relief until authorities in the metropolitan area have decided upon a definite program.

State Financial Situation Relieved
A crisis in state finances loomed in March when the legislature was in the midst of its struggle over prohibition repeal, and attention of administration heads were turned to passing appropriate legislation to relieve the strained situation. The crisis never was reached, however, because before the predicted period of deflation of the general revenue fund arrived, collection of inheritance taxes and payment of some funds by Cook county put the treasury over the brink.

Two bills, enacted into law by the 57th General Assembly, remain to be used in the event of another crisis, however. They pertain to the issuance by the state of warrants in anticipation of taxes. Administration forces pushed them through 56th houses in record time and under a suit in which Hazen S. Capron, University of Illinois treasurer, was plaintiff and Oscar Nelson, auditor of public accounts, was defendant, the Supreme Court held the law authorizing the issuance of anticipation warrants as constitutional.

The state, under the laws, is authorized to purchase by its own anticipation warrants issued under one fund with the money of another fund at any time the treasurer and administration officials see fit. The loaning fund, however, shall be paid back two per cent interest on the loan.

Eight Hour Bill Defeated
The six months that were required in shaping a women's eight hour bill and sponsoring it through an unfriendly senate were of no avail in the closing hours of the session. The house, its calendar heaped high with other pending measures, defeated the bill that would have limited the work of women in industries to 48 hours a week, pushed this important measure aside with the same gesture that willed 1,000 other bills in the same day.

A lobby of 1,300 Kankakee business men and factory workers, many of them women, were active lobbyists against the bill. On June 6 this huge delegation swarmed the house chamber, was extended courtesies that the house rarely gives, and heard the roll call that spelled a 59 to 65 defeat for limited working hours.

The measure, introduced by Senator Richard Barr, first applied to women in many occupations, but it was not passed by the senate until it was amended to exclude hotels, restaurants and other such businesses. When the house got it, postponement after postponement was the feature. At first it seemed to have a passing majority in that body, but as time went on and more pressure was brought to bear, the majority dwindled. In explaining their votes against the bill, many representatives insisted that it was not fair to limit women in work when men were not limited. They also felt that in the present economic situation, workers should not be hindered.

Tried to Raise County Tax Rate
When the session was almost over Representative R. J. Branson, republican, Carlinville, introduced a bill to increase the tax levy of counties for the purpose of paying debts. Two days later the committee on revenue approved of it, but on second reading, twelve days after introduction, it was tabled, and allowed to die a peaceful death. Its passing was marked with bursts of oratory, however, there being much opposition to any attempt to pass a bill which would authorize all downstate counties, not including Cook, to increase the tax levy from 25 to 40 cents on the one hundred dollar valuation for the next four years to pay for indebtedness incurred before July of this year.

Branson and proponents of the bill sought to bring relief to many bankrupt counties in the state, debts of which are so great that they are cutting to the minimum their relief for the blind and poor. He sought only to provide for payment of these debts of the past.

Failure to pass this bill brought condemnation from Governor Emmerson, and was "the straw that broke the camel's back" as far as relations between the executive and the legislature were concerned. For some time after the governor described the legislature as "foolish." Democrats took every opportunity presented them to "punch" the executive, who had urged that some relief be given counties so that they could pay their honest debts.

Police Bill Defeated
An administration bill to increase the powers of the state police and enlarge the force under Captain Walter Moody from 300 to 350 was defeated in the closing days of the session. The bill originally provided only for the enlargement of the force, but after Attorney General Carlstrom held that state police can cooperate only with sheriffs and city police, the house attached an amendment that would have given state police power equal to that held by city and county police officers, with the addition that they would have jurisdiction throughout the state.

Labor protested vigorously that the bill was designed to create a strike-breaking constabulary. It fell far short of passage in the house and would have needed concurrence in the senate before it became law.

Common School Fund
Champions of the "school children of the state," failed in their effort to secure a $2,000,000 increase in the annual school distributive fund, but they did get a $500,000 increase.

Representative Albert Waller, republican, Tamaroa, led the fight for a $12,000,000 annual fund, and administration leaders in the house insisting that the state would not be able to bear the additional increase in the levy that would be required, demanded that the fund be left at $10,000,000 where it has been for the last two years.

Waller and his friends, however, forced it into a conference committee, and even threatened to delay adjournment. Three days before the time for adjournment was set, the conference committee granted a half million dollar increase, and the bill advanced through the regular channels of legislation to the governor.

Prison Reform
Rioting at the Illinois State penitentiary and the half a million dollar prison fire at Stateville found an investigation committee already named to start an official inquiry, having been named to quiz prison officials over the previous shootings to death of three escaping prisoners.

Extensive hearings were held at Stateville to satisfy demand for information. The committee was to report on the methods of the parole board. The prison investigating committee heard all complaints truly but in the end adopted a report commending the parole board members as gentlemen possessed of a high sense of duty and fairness, and cleared the warden at Joliet and all his assistants of any blame for the rioting, and prison unrest.

However, they made this charge, that the shooting of the three escaping prisoners was unnecessary, inasmuch as their escape might have been stopped from within the walls.

Out of the investigation, grew enactment of a law creating a permanent commission of five senators and four representatives to study the punishment of convicts, the indeterminate sentence and the parole system with a view to determining some method of reducing prison population in Illinois. An appropriation of $25,000 was made for expenses of the commission.

A prison labor committee visited several eastern prisons soon after the rioting at the state penitentiary to see what activities might be imported into Illinois to provide more employment for convicts. An outgrowth of this effort was adoption of a act to require the state and its political subdivisions to purchase such goods as the prison manufactures.

Making an appearance on the opening day of the session, senatorial re-apportionment proposals were revived again and again in the 57th General Assembly only to go down in defeat because down state and Cook county members refused to compromise.

Three special and distinctive brands of re-apportionment were offered to the assembly but none met with the approval of a majority of the members of either house.

The first senatorial re-apportionment bill of the session was introduced in the senate and provided for a constitutional remapping of the state which would have given Chicago control of both branches. While some downstate members were willing to give Chicago control of one branch they balked at turning the reins of the assembly entirely over to Cook county.

Another proposal was offered by Arthur Roe of Vandalia who introduced a bill to give Cook county 25 of the 51 districts of the state. Cook county now has only 20 districts but the Cook county leaders refused the offer.

A further compromise was proposed by Senator Richard Barr of Joliet. He offered a resolution calling for the creation of a commission to make a study of re-apportionment with the view of increasing home rule in Chicago and limiting Cook county representatives in one house. The resolution was adopted by the senate but was tabled by the house judicial committee.

In the final week of the session, minority leader E. J. Courtney jockeyed his senatorial re-apportionment bill down the calendar and obtained a vote upon it. The bill providing for re-districting on a strict population basis was defeated.

Congressional Re-Apportionment
Perpetuating a partisan squall that had been brewing from early in the session, the Republicans in the closing days of June pushed through a congressional re-apportionment of the state.

This remapping, called by the democrats a "Gerrymander and a highway robbery," changes approximately 1,000,000 voters from one district to another. It gives Chicago proper 12 districts and the metropolitan area 14, eliminating the two congressmen at large.

Re-apportionment was forced upon many unwilling republicans, by the action of the democrats, who in caucus agreed to vote against any re-apportionment program until they could dictate it.

When this decision was made known to the republicans who control 81 votes in the house, they proceeded with the help of Governor Emmerson to cram congressional re-apportionment down the necks of the democrats. This took two days during which the session was at a halt in the throes of a filibuster.

Governor Emmerson, in a message to the republican members, said that the state must be re-apportioned congressionally. He repeated his instructions to the republican members of the senate.

Passage of the bill in the senate was not so stormy as in the house, although minority leader Courtney criticized the manner in which the bill was placed on the calendar and "advanced in the dark of the night after the senate had adjourned."

After the heat of battle had died down, and democrats were given a chance to look the bill over more carefully and compare the new district lines with the election records on file in the Secretary of State's office, much of their hostility left them.

Although the political result of the re-districting may not be determined for several years, it will at least complicate the next election in this state as all candidates will have new fences to build and new machines to invent.

Prohibition Repealer
A prohibition repealer bill was passed by both houses and vetoed early in the session, getting Governor Louis L. Emmerson country wide commendation and criticism. From both friends and enemies the suggestion came that it put him up as

Little Girls, She Has 800 Dolls!

The home of Mrs. A. W. Scott at Woodland, Wash., is a little girl's idea of paradise. From the day that she received her first doll as a baby, Mrs. Scott had made a hobby of collecting them. Her fame spread and now she has 800 sent to her from all parts of the world. She hasn't bought a single one. She is shown here with some of them.

a possible "dry" running mate for President Herbert Hoover if he runs for re-election.

Old "wet" and "dry" arguments were warmed up in debates that brought enthusiasms to a high pitch and kept them there not only while the struggle over the repealer lasted but until the storm following the veto had died down. In the house the "wets" forgot to be democrats and republicans for a day, and went into a caucus of "liberals" and after slapping one another on the back and declaring their sympathies were deeper than politics went, they came out at the same door they went in, so to speak.

Threats of reprisal against the administration were frowned on except that it was suggested the liberals should "help the governor" be economical.

Meanwhile the governor printed several thousand copies of his veto message, and mailed them out, explaining that he stood for close adherence to the federal constitution, which he declared officials of the state of Illinois were bound by oath to observe, the proposed repealer, he declared would put the state in the unsavory company of "nullification-ists."

Thomas O'Grady, Democrat of Chicago, introduced the repealer and led the fight for it, ably assisted by oratory which drew not only up membership of the house but on the new liberal organization of the "Crusaders."

The majority secured for the proposal in the house was ample, but in the senate it was close and uncertain till the final roll call, when a number of senators hitherto known as "drys" declared they had harkened to the demand of their constituents back home and were for the repealer.

Later in the session a resolution to memorialize congress to submit repeal of the 18th amendment to the legislatures of the several states was adopted by the house, while the drys were sleeping, but was killed in the senate. It was advanced in the house without opposition, thus forcing the drys to admit the charge of sleeping.

Tax Relief
Although little was accomplished toward distributing the state tax burden more equitably, Illinois taxpayers were doled out a few small favors by the assembly.

Perhaps the most important of these was Senator Florence Eifer Bohrer's bill permitting property owners to pay their taxes in semi-annual installments rather than in a lump sum each year.

As introduced by Mrs. Bohrer, and passed by the senate, the bill included all property taxes, but the house amended it so as to apply only to real estate taxes. The amendment was accepted by the senate.

Mrs. Bohrer said that the bill would be of great benefit to property owners, especially down-state farmers. She pointed out that in her district alone at least $50,000 would be saved by tax payers in interest on money borrowed for payment of taxes.

Another bill passed by both the branches and signed by the governor provides that the application for judgments for the order of sale of property on which taxes are delinquent for the year 1930 shall be postponed from the June to the September term of the county court sage of most of the important measures they introduced.

Divorce Laws
Several proposals were made to liberalize divorce laws but only one survived committee attacks, and reached the governor's desk. It would make desertion for a period of one year a cause for divorce. The present law requires two years.

Silver Nitrate
An innocent solution called "silver nitrate" caused one of the bitterest fights of the session.

Doctors of medicine in the assembly insisted that the solution was invaluable as a prophylactic against blindness if introduced in babies soon after birth. Over the opposition of legislatures who regarded it as a drug, and hence outside the pale for Christian Scientists, both the house and senate passed the bill but Governor Emmerson stopped it with a veto.

Druggist Healers
Osteopaths, chiropractors and naturopaths waged a mild lobbying campaign to secure a separate state board, instead of having to submit to regulations imposed by a board of medical doctors. They had more support than in previous sessions but lacked enough votes to get their bills to a roll call.

Legion, Lions And Boy Scouts Help Wild Game

Washington.—The American Legion, the Lions Club and a deputy game warden at Toledo, Oregon, may have started a national movement among Boy Scouts, according to announcement of the American Game Association, when they enrolled the Boy Scouts of that vicinity in a wild life conservation plan. Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association, said that the plan is so sound that he is confident it will spread nationally, taking in every state.

There are two Scout troops—and friendly rivalry has started between them. One troop is in major in Forestry and the other in Game and Fish Conservation. Tests of knowledge and practice are to be held each month, it is reported. The troops will submit from Forestry to Game and Fish Conservation and vice versa, thus each troop alternating, covering both fields.

Each Scout majoring in Forestry is to be made an Honorary Forester and Fire Warden, and each one majoring in Game and Fish Conservation is to be rewarded with the position of Honorary Game Warden.

Each Scout takes the following pledge:—"Upon my honor as a nature guardian, I promise to take care of natural friends—the birds, fish and all useful dumb animals, the flowers, the trees and the forest. I will do my best to protect them from abuse and hard usage."

"I promise not to rob a bird's nest, nor to willfully kill a bird, an animal or a fish in violation of the law, nor to abuse or bully a dumb animal; and I will strive to keep others from doing these things, to the best of my ability. I will endeavor to prove myself a friend to all living things that are harmless."

"I will put out camp fires started by myself or others, and I will do my utmost to protect forests from destruction because forest fires not only destroy the trees and underbrush, but also burn birds and animals or their nests and dens."

"I will familiarize myself with the Game and Fish and Fire laws of my State so as to be able to govern my conduct and advise others, and in every way possible, I will do my best to protect the inhabitants of the great outdoors."

110 VERMONT TOWNS LACK DOCTORS

THE WHIP OF GOD

"As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: Be zealous therefore, and repent."
—Rev. 3: 19.

Many talk of God's love in such a way as to lead me to believe they think of Him as a childish old man, doddering about among his Creatures. An old saying, "Love is blind," may be seriously questioned. Silly, sensuous love may be blind; but not a love that is God-like, high, pure and spiritual. True love, while cognizant of the imperfections, turns its attention to consideration of the virtues. The love of God does not close his eyes to the sinners' sins. He cannot pass by iniquity as if it did not exist. His love offers a remedy for sin and has every just right to expect the sinner's acceptance.

The Almighty is not controlled by whims or fancies. He is not a creature of circumstances. His plan for the universe goes through on time and according to His purpose. God is autocratic. He has every right to be. But His authority rests on justice, and all His acts are tempered with mercy.

What punishments men have brought on themselves. Sin has its own rewards of sorrow. Disobedience brings men under the lash of the task-master. God looks on His erring creatures and leads them out of their Egypt by a mighty deliverance.

Sometimes it takes a lot of chastisement to bring men to see the loving purpose of God. "Jacob have I loved." "When Israel was a child, I loved him."

But wilful, selfish Jacob was to undergo serious weeping before he could be fitted for the blessings of Israel.

God does not lay on the lash for the sake of inflicting punishment by the sting. "In wrath He remembers mercy." The heaviest blows fell on His own shoulders. It is "by his stripes we are healed." In the suffering Saviour, we see the meaning of the awfulness of sin, and find its remedy.

Not all suffering is chastisement from God, but God turns the ills of life into blessings for the repentant soul, and many a man, born blind, glorifies God for his miraculous sight. God is not to be charged with the sufferings of humanity which are the outgrowth of disobedience. But His correction always yields the fruit of righteousness to those who are rightly exercised by it. Many a time the sting of the whip recalls the wandering child, and turns his steps in the way of peace.

The Laodicean Christians were much like the Christians of our day. What a list of things they counted for their blessings but they were lukewarm, useless, nauseous, disgustingly lukewarm. They were in real poverty amid their wealth. They were naked and blind to their shameful condition. He had even been shut out of their hearts. It is because He loved them so He rebuked them.

Baseball Gossip

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, June 20—(UP)—Fears that the Chicago Cubs, after a rather unimpressive home stand, would see their 1931 National League pennant hopes fade on their current eastern invasion, apparently were groundless.

With Manager Rogers Hornsby back in the lineup, recovered from a hitting slump, the Cubs have displayed their old time power in the first three games of the road jaunt. They have taken two of the three contests again Brooklyn and have been hitting the ball at a merry clip.

The triumphs marked the return of Hack Wilson to batting form. If Wilson continues to hit and Pat Malone can take his regular turn hereafter on the mound, the Cubs will still be a formidable threat for the pennant.

There was nothing wrong with their play yesterday as they overwhelmed Brooklyn, 12 to 7. The Cubs scored ten runs in the fourth and fifth innings when they knocked Joe Shaute, starting Brooklyn pitcher and Fred Helmach from the mound.

The St. Louis Cardinals increased their leadership in the National to four full contests by whipping the Boston Braves, 11 to 3, at Pittsburgh from New York, holders of second place, 4 to 1. The Cardinals got to Seibold for six runs in the first three innings and allowed Bill Hallahan to coast to victory.

Piling up a large lead in the first three innings, the Philadelphia Phillies had little trouble in downing Cincinnati, 10 to 3.

In the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics increased their leadership to three and one half contests by defeating the Chicago White Sox 10 to 4 while the second place Washington Senators lost to Cleveland, 9 to 6.

The Indians broke Washington's winning streak which had extended to 12 games, by hitting Sad Sam Jones hard in the early innings while Miller and Harder managed to keep the Senators at bay.

The New York Yankees got 19 hits at the expense of three St. Louis hurlers and turned in a 16 to 5 victory. Johnson limited the Browns to seven hits.

Detroit defeated Boston, 7 to 6 in the other American League contest. The two teams made 30 hits, the Tigers turning in 19 of them.

YOUNG STRIBLING, SCHMELING ARE GETTING IN LICKS

Both Will Be In Great
Condition For Fight
Night Of July 3

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland, O., June 20—(AP)—A couple of young business men, with a million dollars or so at stake, are busily preparing to give the Midwest in general and Ohio in particular the biggest fistic thrill that has wandered out this way since Jack Dempsey battered the giant Jess Willard into subjection at Toledo in 1919.

On the shores of Conneaut Lake in Pennsylvania, almost 100 miles away, Max Schmeling is clouting sparring partners daily while just on the fringe of the city, at Genaua Lake, Bill Stribling trains at night in gentler fashion. And in less than two weeks, these two will battle fifteen rounds for the heavyweight championship in Cleveland's new municipal stadium, on the night of July 3, one day short of the 12th anniversary of Dempsey's sensational rise to title heights at Toledo.

The setting for the battle of the black-browed German who looks like Dempsey, and Stribling, the smiling Georgian, lacks some of the color of sun-scorched Toledo where a giant crumbled before the iron fists of one of the greatest heavyweights of all times. Big business today has replaced the sprawling, shirt-sleeved Tex Rickard of the Toledo days and fighters themselves have yet to prove their right to comparison with either a Dempsey or a Willard.

Max is Ready
Schmeling, the champion, sun-blackened and aggressive, looks more like the young Dempsey every day as he shifts, weaves and whips short punches from either side into the heads and bodies of his helpers. He seems stronger, livelier now than he did a year ago in training for his fiasco with Jack Sharkey in New York, when he won the heavyweight title on a foul, the first time that had ever happened in all the history of pugilism. He could step into the ring with Stribling tomorrow if it were necessary, so fine is his present condition.

The youthful Georgian, old in the fight game but young in years, is equally fit. With the aid of "Pa" Stribling, the father-manager, Bill has figured it out that fighting at night calls for training at night if he is to keep in perfect tune with conditions as they will be on the night of July 3. As a result the Stribling camp scarcely stirs during the day but the coming of darkness brings out the sparring partners and the paraphernalia. Stribling goes into the training camp at 9 p. m., the exact time he believes he will be called out to face Schmeling the night before the Fourth.

Today bill is close to the 138 pounds he expects to weigh for the title test.

Spells Opportunity
For both of these youngsters the 15-round duel on the shores of Lake Erie, in the magnificent municipal horseshoe Cleveland had built to hold 100,000 sports fans, spells opportunity in capital letters. Schmeling has never been accepted without reservation as champion because of his failure to give Sharkey a return spot at the title. The New York State Athletic Commission holds that the crown has no owner and will not have one until Sharkey is disposed of. A decisive victory for the German will at least strengthen the Schmeling case with the faithful who pay the freight.

Chicago, June 20—(AP)—Eddie Morgan, Cleveland's young first baseman, who couldn't decide to remain in the baseball business until the season was well under way swooped to the top of the American League individual batting race during the ninth week of the championship campaign.

Unofficial figures, which include Wednesday's games, credited Morgan with an average of .389, three point better than Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics, and Babe Ruth, who were tied for second place. Morgan's mark represented an improvement of 10 points and boosted him from fourth position into the lead. Cochrane's average remained the same as last week when the great Babe dropped 14 points.

Joe Cronin, Washington's shortstop, continued to monopolize the individual leaderships. He had 83 safe hits good for 133 bases, led with eight triples, and had knocked home 54 runs. Jimmy Foss of the Athletics, headed the home run hitters with 13, and Earl Webb of Boston retained the leadership in two base hits with 26. Al Simmons topped the scorers with 51 runs, and Ben Chapman of the Yankees was the leading base stealer with 20 thefts.

Other leaders among the regulars were Gailin, St. Louis, .374; Simmons, Philadelphia, .369; Melillo, St. Louis, .357; West, Washington, .356; Cronin, Washington, .352; Webb, Boston, .349; Vosmik, Cleveland, .344.

Walloping the ball at a hot clip during its sensational winning streak, Washington jumped into the team batting leadership with a mark of .304, six points better than last week, to displace Cleveland which led nine points. The Athletics retained the team fielding leadership with .979, two points shy of last week's figure, with New York second at .977. Detroit and Cleveland were deadlocked in their double play battle, each having accomplished the maneuver 54 times.

The right and left-handed Philadelphia firm of George Earnshaw and Bob Grove, with each member boasting a record of eleven victories and two defeats, were the hurling leaders, although a pair of Washington youngsters Fischer and

CHAPTER XLVI
BERYL started with surprise, spilling a few drops of the chocolate on her party dress. The accident did not distress her. Beryl felt she would be glad when all the things the Velvet Girl had bought were gone.

Beryl went to answer the door bell and her hand shook visibly when she took the telegram that was delivered to her by a young man who said he'd wait to see if there might be an answer.

Beryl asked him to come in out of the bitter wind that was howling across the porch. The telegram was for her mother.

"It's a telegram," Beryl said and handed the envelope over unopened. Her mother, leaning down the stairs, took it eagerly.

Beryl went up the few remaining steps and waited. Her mother had good eyes and it was not necessary for her to put on glasses before she could read the message.

She read it hastily. Suddenly Mrs. Everett shrieked.

Everyone came running, even to the messenger boy. Beryl caught her mother in her arms as she collapsed but she could not have supported her for long had not Mr. Everett come to her aid.

Tommy halted near the head of the stairs, just behind the messenger boy, and stood waiting until Mr. Everett and Beryl had got the woman into her room.

"Gee, do you suppose somebody's dead?" the messenger boy whispered. "I knew it was bad news—I was told to wait for an answer

STORY OF LIFE OF STARR FAITHFULL

As Told To United Press Staff Correspondent By Grieving Members Of Slain Girl's Family

(The United Press presents here with the last chapter in the life story of Starr Faithfull, whose death has perplexed authorities.)

Stanley Faithfull and his family have given the details to the United Press with the expressed intention of clearing Starr's name of innuendoes in a part of the press.

Today's story deals with the girl's revelation of alleged mal-treatment by a middle aged man when she was 11 years old, and the events that grew out of this disclosure.

New York, June 20.—(UP)—Stanley Faithfull, stepfather of the dead Starr Faithfull, told the United Press today he knew "The man who killed her soul" though he did not know the "man who killed her body."

Faithfull and his family were just closing the recital of Starr's life history—a revelation which, he suggested, might be of value to parents throughout the country by causing them to guard their children against perils.

"We have thought seriously of what we say," Faithfull remarked after telling the story of how Starr had, after long concealment, poured forth a story of intimacies with a man old enough to be her father—a man whom she said had covered his deeds with the claim that he was acting in the role of father to her. The mistreatment, as related by the girl, started at the age of 11 and had continued long, and in the meantime she was evidently struggling to reconcile in her own mind his deeds with the word she heard everywhere that the man in question could do no wrong.

This man had been trusted almost as a father, according to the Faithfulls, but had abused this confidence with shocking relations which, in Faithfull's words "killed her soul," and left her at womanhood with a twisted view of life, love and sex. Under the guise of kindness and of being a "father" to her, the man, according to Faithfull, had wrought his immoralities.

It was in June, 1926, that Mrs. Faithfull, then living in West Orange, was advised that this man was coming to New York, and would take Starr to a theater. Subsequently, as the Faithfulls relate, he called up the West Orange home to suggest that it would be well if "Daisy"—as Starr was known—remained overnight in New York.

The girl was asked if she wished to remain in town. "She talked incoherently and very strangely, much like a person who was under the influence of liquor, but I felt that it was inconceivable that she would have liquor being with—" Mrs. Faithfull continued.

"She told me, 'I really think I had better.'"

When Starr returned home, she acted strangely, lay in her room, and acted "dazed but not hysterical, like a person under a drug."

Mrs. Faithfull at this point, asking her husband to relate the rest of the story alone.

As given by him, Starr told of occurrences in the hotel here the previous night. This happened only a few hours before time for the girl to sail on a cruise to England and the family decided that it would be best not to have her abandon this trip. On this journey, Starr was reported to have taken considerable drink and to have become particularly excitable, whereas on previous trips she had drunk nothing.

Her condition seemed worse upon her return in September, and the family had her consult an alienist.

Prior to this, she had unfolded to her mother a story of the relations of the man in the case. It came out in sections; sometimes only a few words; again in a flood as though by telling the details she was "purging her soul." The details are unprintable. The girl advised her mother that the man had acted under the guise of teaching her the things she should know and that her father would have given her. (Her own father was separated from her mother.) The girl quoted the man as saying any reluctance on her part would be abnormal.

Sometimes he drugged her with chloroform, according to the girl, who vaguely recalled some experiences on occasions when the drug had left her only half unconscious. The man's treatment of Starr left her with twisted mental reactions, while the autopsy indicated an impairment of internal organs, according to Faithfull, traceable to the early mistreatment.

Starr has been pictured by some papers as a girl with numerous men friends. She did have men friends, the Faithfulls explain, but they were men of good family and respectability. Her interest in men, owing to her early experiences turned to the intellectual rather than physical attractions. For instance she liked some officers she met on her several cruises and found intellectual stimulation from their talk of travel and experience.

Sometimes she had moments of amorous impulse but according to her stories to her mother, the idea of yielding to these was repulsive.

The alienists consulted by Starr endeavored to restore her mind to normal reactions and recommended diversions, a change of scenery and considerable exercise. He advised that she would overcome her reticence toward the society of men according to Faithfull.

The family undertook to aid in restoring the girl to a happier outlook on life than she had had in the years when she was hiding a manly torturing secret. They treated her kindly, and sought to retain confidence so that they might know how to deal with moods or depressions when they should appear. Restlessness during this period was a marked characteristic. Upon returning from a trip abroad, she would start planning for another.

"She told us that if she could only have something to look forward to, she would always be happy," Mr. Faithfull said.

He said that when she was in London, the family had constant reports on her conduct from the manageress of the hotel where she lived or chaperones and these were uniformly good.

"If there had been any episodes such as have been reported in the press, we unquestionably would have heard of them through these sources in whom we had confidence," Faithfull added. "We felt certain that in some of the things reported it must have been a case of mistaken identity."

"The escapades reported in the press of a life in Greenwich Village could not have occurred as, owing to her depressed condition during a good portion of the period since her return from Europe last fall she had spent most of her time at her home. Not one evening had she been out except in the company of her mother during this entire time, with the exception of the last three days of her life."

"And during the daytime, we were able to account for her whereabouts, so the stories told of escapades must be a case of mistaken identity or the inventions of the sensational press."

"On only two or three occasions in Starr's entire life have we ever had knowledge of her being in what is commonly known as an intoxicated condition. In the present case, we think that this is a rather remarkable statement to be able to make with regard to most society girls."

"The trouble with her was that owing to this difference in her mental reactions toward life, liquor did not have the normal effect upon her. Even a small amount of liquor would not only change her mental behavior, but at times her mind

A Reunion of Riches

There was a reunion of Riches during the class day celebration at Smith College, Northampton, Mass. Jane Rich, left, was there, and Irene Rich, the movie star, center had come to see the graduation of her daughter, Frances Rich, shown at right in cap and gown. More than 2000 alumnae took part in the traditional ceremonies of Ivy day.

There would become a total blank."

Mrs. Faithfull and daughter, Miss Tucker, went with her to London last June. "Bamby" had spells of happiness and depression. When she returned, she seemed to show improvement. When she returned last November she was depressed at the thought that she could not remain in England, but in time she became reconciled to the return and was very happy June 5, the day she left home—never to return alive.
